

John Larsen <theclaw56@gmail.com>

Me, again!

Joyce Larsen <linenLady9@larsen-family.us>

Fri, Oct 15, 2010 at 2:14 PM

To: phillip.larsen@myldsmail.net

Cc: theClaw56@larsen-family.us

Hi, Phillip, Elder Larsen,

I just sent a DearElder.com letter, and you will hopefully get it today. So this way you can get some email as well.

You asked what is happening in the world. One neat thing that happened the other day is that the miners in Chile who have been buried since August 5th were finally rescued. All of them! A special tube was made that could travel through the hole that was drilled. Then each miner was brought up, taking about 20 minutes. They had also let some rescuers down to help the miners. The eyes of the whole world were on the rescue, and it is amazing what nations can do when they come together like this. Other than that, for world events, see Matthew 24:6-8, and later. Same old, same old!

In the pictures Dad sent, the one of all of us girls in front of the autumn tree is taken at the church, between sessions of General Conference on Sunday. We had gone on Saturday night to JC Penney's, and Heather and Julia and I each bought a "Phillip Sweatshirt", as we are now calling them. So we wore them in your honor for the picture, and also because they are lovely comfortable sweatshirts! The one disadvantage to sending the pictures the way we did is that we can't do comments or captions on them.

I'll comment and send more stuff later, and want to be sure to leave you computer time to write to us! So, I love you, Phillip, very much, and I'm proud of you and delighted you're serving a mission, and hope you're growing spiritually, as well as in language skills and all kinds of other ways.

Love,
Mom